These reports may have some truth in them, inasmuch as Germany has been engaged in negotiating for such agreement between England and Russia. but it is undoubtedly at least premature to say that all conditions of the tend war. If it comes, however, it about within the next month or probably before the reassembling of parliament. We are daily informed by prominent members of conservative clubs and by other leading politicians that the English government consider war inevitable during the next few months and that their only desire is to get everything ready for a powerful offensive movement against Russia without precipitating the conflict at once. Every day of delay sees Russia more embarrassed, while England is steadily adding to her strength. On the other hand the Liberals insist that there has not yet been shown any good reason for war and therefore that quite as unstable a guide as the latter. the government will not dare to bring it on. It may be taken for granted that the truth between these two views is that while the government hope to avoid war they are not at all their proceedings in the State courts, certain that it can be long avoided, and preparations for it therefore continue. It is but three years since SANFORD'S RADICAL CUKE was placed before the public, but in that short time it has found its way from Maine to California, and is everywhere acknowledged by druggists and physicians to be the most successful preparation for the thorough treatment of Catarrh ever compounded. The fact will be deemed of more importance when it is coupled with the statement that within five years over 20 different remedies for Catarrh have been placed on asile, and to-day, with one or two exceptions, their names cannot be recalled by the best-informed druggist. Advertising may succeed in forcing a few sales, but, unless the remedy possess undoubted specific medical properties, it B absolutely certain to fall into merited obscurity.
